TERRELL BANK FINDS SILVER IN BEST OF ARCHITECTURE AWARDS

The Independent Bankers Association of Texas (IBAT) has awarded a Silver Medal to American National Bank of Texas for the architectural design of a new Business Center in Dallas.

President and CEO Robert Hulseay, along with Assistant Vice President Amy Sanders, accepted the award at the 35th annual IBAT convention in San Antonio during ceremonies honoring winners in the Best of Community Awards presented each year to community banks across the state.

The Business Center, which also serves as an Education Center for bank employees, was constructed in answer to years of research to determine what the business community wanted in such a facility.

The Center is offered to customers through a membership program and was intentionally designed to create a working environment that can be personalized and used for multiple events. Research showed that 53 percent of the small business owners work from their homes and the center offers much needed space for the member, whether planning to use it for an educational session or networking. The Best of Community Banking Awards recognize IBAT banks for outstanding service in the areas of architectural design, community service, financial literacy and marketing. IBAT represents more than 2,000 Texas-based banks and branches in 700 communities.
